EXPORT AND IMPORT TRAFFIC.

Decision Regarding the Publication of Railway Rates.

The interstate commerce commission to day announced that as a result of its investigation of the feasibility of requiring railroads to publish their tariffs for the movement of export and import traffic, the same as domestic traffic, it has decided to leave the matter in abeyance for a time If the interstate commerce act is not amended within a reasonable time, so as to relieve the commission of the necessity of requiring such publication, the commission holds that it will be its duty to enforce the publication of import and export rates in the manner now provided by law, but so far not coimplied with.

After fully discussing the subject in a report and opinion of some length, the commission announces its conclusions as follows: lows:
"I. That the act now requires the pub lication of import and export tariffs in the same manner as domestic tariffs. "2. That public policy urgently requires that the inland transportation of import and export commerce should be subject to the act to regulate commerce, and that the publishing and maintaining of tariffs upon such traffic imposes in most instances no hardship upon the carrier. There may be cases in which a modification of this rule would be of service to the carrier without detriment to the public, and perhaps other instances in which such a modification. out detriment to the public, and perhaps other instances in which such a modification should be granted in the interest of both the carrier and the public. This can only be accomplished by an amendment of the act, since the provisions of that statute are mandatory, and the commission has no power to modify their requirements.

"3. If carriers are to any extent relieved from giving the notice now required of ad-

from giving the notice now required of advances and reductions in rates upon foreign commerce, they should in all cases file with the commission the rates actually made and give such further notice to the

made and give such further houce to the public as may be possible.
"Upon the whole, we are inclined to leave this matter as it is until opportunity has been afforded carriers to adjust their tariffs and arrangements, and, if so advised, present this subject to Congress; provided, however, that in the meantime all carriers which do not publish and maintain import and export tariffs shall file with the commission as promptly as promptly as the extra mission as promptly as possible a state ment of the rates actually charged. It is evident that there must be uniformity in the enforcement of these provisions of the act. One carrier cannot be expected to competitor is relieved from that obligation. If the act is not amended within a reasonable time it will be our duty to enforce

February 20, the serial story "The Wings of the Morning," by Louis Tracy. In this story the description of the wreck of the Sirdar carries the reader off to the China sea in the first pages of the first chapter and keeps him a willing exile to the last word of the story. "The Wings of the Morning" adds these exciting adventures to the reader's own life. He or she immediately becomes part of the story. This rare power takes you back to your boyhood or girlhood, when you actually seemed to live the part of your hero or your heroine. A literary treat is promised everybody who reads "The Wings of the Morning."

DEATH OF MRS. MARY WILSON DE MAINE DEATH OF MRS. MARY WILSON DE MAINE.

DE MAINE. Hundreds of friends of Mrs. DE MAINE will be shocked and grieved to hear of her death, which occurred last night at 9 o'clock, quietly, peaceful and conscious to the end, and then fell asleep, never to awaken.
Her cheerful and smiling good morning will be missed by all her friends in the Treasury, and especially in the office of Hon. Thos. J. Hobbs, disbursing clerk, where she was employed, and her place cannot easily be filled. To her friends who knew her best her loving and sympathizing qualities were beyond price.
